SPELL CAST BY WILDERNESS

Veteran Prospector Tells of Weird Effect Long Sojourn in the Wilds Had on Him.

The hours we spent with another prospector, the "Old Man of the Mountains," as we called him, were ones that held us with a charm. There was something about the deeply-set, penetrating eyes, the square chin, and the benevolent expression of the face that reminded us of the quiet lakes and the strength of the distant mountain peaks.

"Many is the time," said the old man, "that I have been prospecting so far back in the wilderness of British Columbia that men have said I would never see civilization again, that I would either die or go insane."

"Once I had been in the wilderness of British Columbia for a year," he continued, "winter was breaking up, and with the signs of spring coming on I began to make my way back to the world again. I traveled long and hard, and when I walked down the street of the first village to which I came, the children gathered around me and the women came to their doors. One woman asked me into her house."

"Why do the children all behave so toward me?" I asked. "Because you look so strange," she replied. And then she let me take a looking glass, and I was startled at the sight of myself. I had never noticed that my hair was growing long; but there it was, and my beard, very long and white. There was a strange look in my eyes and I knew that I had just left the wilderness in time!—Blanche E. Herbert, in World Outlook.
